

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The configurable switch array for motor vehicle instrument panels provides for the free substitution and replacement of switches without rewiring of the instrument panel. Each switch assembly in the switch array includes a plurality of identification fingers projecting from the bottom of a switch assembly housing. The pattern and number of the identification fingers indicate the function the switch assembly is to invoke.